NRCS RECEIVES BLM YOUTH AWARD FOR ROLE IN NATURE HIGH CAMP

NRCS in Utah received a youth partnership recognition award at the BLM Utah Executive Leadership Team meeting held yesterday at the Snow College campus in Richfield. Travis Thomason, NRCS Area II Assistant State Conservationist for Field Operations, received the award for NRCS, along with other partners with BLM who have helped champion the Nature High Summer Camp for youth. In the accompanying photo, Thomason accepts the award from Juan Palma (left), State BLM Director. The impressive ceremony included other youth awards and a video presentation highlighting the good youth education work being accomplished by conservation agencies and their partners in Utah. NRCS Soil Conservationist Ray Grow, along with many others over the years, has assisted with instruction at Nature High Camp.

The Nature High Summer Camp is a week-long high energy learning experience for high school students in Utah. The camp is sponsored by several federal agencies and costs $50 for students to attend. To learn more about the camp, visit their website at www.naturehighcamp.com.
