TN RANGE NO. 9

April 2001

The attached Range Technical Note is a republished article from RANGELANDS 12 (6), December 1990. Drs. Lee A. Sharp, Ken Sanders, and Neil Rimbey authored it.

The photo data depicts the variability that can be typically observed in all Range Ecological Sites. The site where the photos were taken was not grazed by domestic livestock during duration of the study. Often we assume that sites are relatively stable in species composition and production when not grazed by domestic livestock. These kinds of variation in species composition and production need to be kept in mind when working with producers.
