

Acres of Conservation Practices Implemented by Year

Phosphorus Reduction by Year

Each strategic watershed planning group developed a five-year goal for reducing annual P loading attributed to agriculture. The EPA BMP Modeling tool was used to estimate P reduction from the adoption of conservation practices based on the number and acres of practices applied.

The results show a significant amount of conservation practice adoption and consistently increasing adoption of conservation practices in all watersheds.