Natural Resources Conservation Service

What is Farmers.gov?

Farmers.gov is an online portal that has various functions and allows different tools and information to be available to producers. These features include:

- View, upload, download, and e-sign documents
- Request conservation assistance
- Request financial assistance, including submitting a program application
- View and request application details
- Reference technical terms and submit questions
- Access information on current and past conservation practices
- View, print, and export detailed farm records and farm/tract maps
- View detailed information on all previous and ongoing contracts, including some costshare assistance received and anticipated

Who can make an account?

- Customers who need access to entity data (such as LLC or Trust) or to act on behalf of another customer
  - Must first login as themselves with their own eAuthentication account
- Individuals with both an eAuthentication account and representative authority to act on behalf of another customer (entity or individual)
  - Will have the ability to 'Switch Profiles' after login
  - 'Switch Profile' is available for active representative authority relationship

Creating a Farmers.gov Account

To create a Farmers.gov account, you will need an individual customer USDA eAuthentication (eAuth) account linked to your USDA Business Partner (BP) customer record. To ensure you have a USDA Business Partner customer record, please contact your local USDA Service Center.

Once you have confirmed you have a current USDA Business Partner customer record you can follow the steps below in creating your account.

1. Visit the Farmers.gov login page and select "Create Account"
2. Follow the steps and verify your identity
  - a. Select Create Account as a "Customer" on the eAuth account registration page and follow the directions on the site
3. To keep personal information protected and secure, there are 2 options to verify your identity:
  - a. Verify your identity online during the registration process using the USDA self-service Online Identity Verification Application (recommended)
  - b. Schedule a visit to your USDA Service Center for in-person identity verification with a Local Registration Authority (LRA) employee.
4. Log in to Farmers.gov
