

PROFILES IN SERVICE

Robert 'Bobby' Hilton

In what branch of the Armed Forces did you serve?

United States Marine Corps as an infantryman

How long did you serve in the military?

4 years. One tour in Iraq and one tour in Southwest Asia

What drew you to military service?

My family has a long history of wartime service to our country in the military and I wanted to honor that.

What did you like most about serving?

What I liked most about serving in the military was the comradere that was built in trying circumstances, and that no matter how bad things got you were never miserable alone.

How does your military experience prepare you for working in a civilian agency?

My military experience prepared me for civilian work by teaching me to never put forth less than your absolute best, and to always conduct yourself in a way that will bring honor to your organization.

What drew you to NRCS?

I was drawn to the NRCS because of my love of natural resources and the potential for me to serve my country in another capacity that was far less demanding than military service.

What do you like best about being part of NRCS?

The thing I like most about the NRCS is the mission and the way we as a state work together to accomplish that mission.
